¿What is the Prostate?

The prostate is a compound tubuloalveolar exocrine gland of the male. It is a gland of the male reproductive system. It is located in front of the rectum and just below the bladder, the organ that stores urine. The prostate wraps around a tube called the urethra, which carries urine from the bladder out through the tip of the penis. The normal prostate gland is quite small. It is normally about the size of a walnut. The gland is made of two lobes, or regions, enclosed by an outer layer of tissue. As the diagrams show, the prostate is located in front of the rectum and just below the bladder, where urine is stored. The prostate also surrounds the urethra, the canal through which urine passes out of the body. The gland plays a role in both sex and urination. The prostate produces most of a male's semen.

Prostate is the most-neglected male disease in the world. It strikes more men than either prostate cancer or prostate enlargement. It can be one of the most miserable diseases inflicted on men. It strikes them at young ages. It lasts longer.

Doctors estimate that one in every four men who see a doctor about a problem involving the penis, urethra, testicles, prostate, bladder, or kidneys is suffering from one of these types of this disease. The prostate plays a crucial part in the male reproductive system because the prostate makes and stores fluid that is part of semen, and this fluid is released from a man's penis during ejaculation.

The prostate is signaled to do its job by the male hormone testosterone, which can influence the behavior of the prostate gland and prostate cancer. If the prostate enlarges, it can block the flow of urine from the bladder making it difficult for a man to urinate.

There are three common diseases of the prostate.

The most common symptoms of the prostate disease are:

- Frequent urination, especially at night.
- Weak urinary stream.
- Inability to urinate.
- Interruption of urinary stream: stopping and starting.
- Pain or burning on urination.
- Blood in the urine.

Millions of men suffer from prostate enlargement and approximately 32,000 men die from prostate cancer every year.

Prostate cancer is the second leading cause of death for men after lung cancer. Over 90% of prostate cancer goes undetected until it is untreatable and has spread to the bone and lymphatic system. Surgery often results in incontinence and impotence.

It is common for the prostate gland to become enlarged as a man ages. This condition is called Benign Prostatic Hyperplasia (BPH), or Benign Prostatic Hypertrophy. As a man matures, the prostate goes through two main periods of growth. The first occurs early in puberty, when the prostate doubles in size. At around age 25, the gland begins to grow again. This second growth phase often results, years later, in BPH.

Don't wait to have the Disease!!!

BPH rarely causes symptoms before age 40. As the prostate enlarges, the layer of tissue surrounding it stops it from expanding, causing the gland to press against the urethra like a clamp on a garden hose. The bladder wall becomes thicker and irritable. The bladder begins to contract even when it contains small amounts of urine, causing more frequent urination, the first symptom that appears often in BPH.

All men 30 years olders can prevent BPH with our Natural Herbs Prostate Formula for Benign Prostatic Hyperplasia (BPH) and Prostatitis treatment.

Prostate Common Diseases

The three most common prostate health problems facing men and their families today are:

- 1. Benign Prostatic Hyperplasia (BPH).
At around age 25, the gland begins a second growth phase again that results, years later, in BPH.
- 2. Prostatitis.
Prostatitis is an inflammation of the prostate gland, often resulting in swelling or pain.
- 3. Prostate cancer.
Prostate cancer occurs when cells within the prostate grow uncontrollably, creating small tumors.

Benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH)

Enlarged prostate gland is known medically as Benign Prostatic Hyperplasia (BPH), or Benign Prostatic Hypertrophy.

At around age 25, the gland begins a second growth phase again that results, years later. Though the prostate continues to grow during most of a man's life, the enlargement doesn't usually cause problems until late in life. BPH rarely causes symptoms before age 40.

Men 30 years older can to avoid BPH disease or cure it with our Natural Herbs Prostate Formula for Benign Prostatic Hyperplasia (BPH) and Prostatitis treatments. The condition may be related to the hormone testosterone and its relationship to other hormones that change during the aging process. As a man matures, the prostate goes through two main periods of growth. The first occurs early in puberty, when the prostate doubles in size and the second occurs at around age 25.

As the prostate enlarges, the layer of tissue surrounding it stops it from expanding, causing the gland to press against the urethra like a clamp on a garden hose. The bladder wall becomes thicker and irritable. The narrowing of the urethra and partial emptying of the bladder cause many of the problems associated with BPH.

The symptoms include difficulty urinating, the need to urinate quite frequently, or awaking during the night to urinate. A man would notice not only the weakening stream, but also more frequent visits to the bathroom, day and night. Another sure sign is urgency.

Severe BPH can cause serious problems over time. Urine retention and strain on the bladder can lead to urinary tract infections, bladder or kidney damage, bladder stones, incontinence and impotence.

Diagnosis: Prostate Specific Antigen (PSA) Blood Test.

Prostatitis

Prostatitis is the general term used to describe prostate inflammation. Prostatitis is an inflammation of the prostate gland, often resulting in swelling or pain. In the United States men who will experience prostatitis during their lifetimes range up to 50 percent.

Today is accepted that the variations of the disease include nonbacterial, acute, and chronic prostatitis. The most common type of prostatitis is nonbacterial prostatitis. Symptoms may include frequent urination and pain in the lower abdomen or lower back area and sexual dysfunctions and impotence.

The symptoms of Prostatitis are:

- pain,
- urination problems,
- sexual dysfunction,
- impotence and
- general health problems, such as feeling tired and depressed.

Therefore, four types of prostatitis are recognized:

- acute bacterial prostatitis,
- chronic prostatitis without infection,

- chronic bacterial prostatitis and
- asymptomatic inflammatory prostatitis

ACUTE BACTERIAL PROSTATITIS

Acute bacterial prostatitis is an infection of the prostate that is often caused by some of the same bacteria that cause bladder infections.

- SYMPTOMS: may include frequent and painful urination, weak stream when urinating, low back pain, and fever and chills. Commonly there is urgency and frequency of urination and painful or difficult urination.

CHRONIC PROSTATITIS WITHOUT INFECTION

Chronic prostatitis without infection, also known as chronic pelvic pain syndrome, is a condition where there is recurrent pelvic, testicle, or rectal pain without evidence of bladder infection.

- SYMPTOMS: may be difficulties with painful urination or ejaculation, and erectile dysfunction, pain in the lower abdomen or lower back area.

CHRONIC BACTERIAL PROSTATITIS

The chronic prostatitis may be bacterial infection or the result of an inflammation of the prostate. Can be the result of a sexually transmitted disease.

- SYMPTOMS: may include frequent bladder infections, frequent urination, and persistent pain in the lower abdomen or back.

ASYMPTOMATIC INFLAMMATORY PROSTATITIS

There are no symptoms.

TREATMENTS

Our Natural Herbs Prostate Formula for Benign Prostatic Hyperplasia (BPH) and Prostatitis showed to be a good herbals treatment to prevent and to cure prostatitis. You will find the formula in the full version e-book (<http://herbs-planet.com>).

Prostate cancer

Prostate cancer occurs when cells within the prostate grow uncontrollably, creating small tumors and the abnormal cell growths are called tumors. Prostate cancer typically is comprised of multiple very small, primary tumors within the prostate. Unfortunately, at this stage the cancer produces few or no symptoms and can be difficult to detect. In most cases, prostate cancer is a relatively slow growing cancer and prostate cancer cells are transported through the lymphatic system and the bloodstream to other parts of the body.

Every man over the age of 45 is at risk for prostate cancer. The risk of getting prostate cancer increases with age. Age is generally considered the most important risk factor for prostate cancer.

- Benign tumors
- Malignant tumors

BENIGN TUMORS

Prostate cancer happens when cells in the prostate begin to grow out of control and can then invade nearby tissues or spread throughout the body.

MALIGNANT TUMORS

The tumors that can spread throughout the body or invade nearby tissues are considered cancer. Usually, prostate cancer is very slow growing but sometimes it will grow quickly and spread to nearby lymph nodes. As the tumor grows, it may spread from the outer part of the prostate to the inner part of the prostate, eventually putting pressure on surrounding parts of the body, such as the urethra. Prostate cancer can spread from the prostate to nearby lymph nodes, bones, or other organs.

TREATMENTS

In this e-book you have the herbal prostate cancer PC-SPES formula (<http://herbs-planet.com>) to treat the disease. The PC-SPES has been used in traditional Chinese medicine since long time. This formula possess anti-cancer, anti-inflammatory, antiviral and immune enhancement properties.

PC-SPES is the best herbals's alternative Prostate Cancer treatment.

Risk factors

Some of the most important risk factors for prostate cancer include:

INCREASING AGE

The incidence of prostate cancer rises quickly after the age of 60, and the majority of men will have some form of prostate cancer after the age of 80.

When prostatic tissue is examined under a microscope either after prostate surgery or at autopsy, cancer is found in 50 percent of men over age 70 and in virtually all men over age 90.

Most of these cancers never cause symptoms because they spread very slowly; however, some prostate cancers do grow more aggressively and spread throughout the body. Prostate cancer is still the second most common cause of cancer death among American men.

DIET: A HIGH FAT DIET

The most common dietary culprit implicated in raising prostate cancer risk is a high fat diet, particularly a diet high in animal fats.

There are a few foods that have been implicated in decreasing prostate cancer risk: a diet high in tomatoes (lycopene) has been suggested as well as diet high in omega-3-fatty acids, oils found in fish like salmon and mackerel. Diets high in selenium, vitamin D, and soy have all been suggested to decrease prostate cancer risk.

ETHNICITY: AFRICAN-AMERICAN RACE

Ethnicity is another important risk factor for prostate cancer. Prostate cancer is more common in African-American and Latino men than Caucasian men.

Prostate cancer is the second most common type of cancer among American men. No one knows exactly why.

GENETICS: FAMILY HISTORY OF PROSTATE CANCER

A family history of prostate cancer increases a man's chances of developing the disease. This increase shows itself when a man has either a father or brothers (or both) with prostate cancer, and is even greater when his relatives develop prostate cancer at a young age.

An increased risk for prostate cancer does not mean you will definitely get it. Just as not having prostate cancer in your family does not mean you won't get it. The increased incidence of this disease in relatives is because these relatives each have the gene(s) that predisposed them to developing this kind of cancer. The pattern is clear the more men in a family with prostate cancer, the greater the role played by genes.

Diagnosis

Symptoms that suggest prostate disease

- a hesitant, interrupted, weak stream.
- urgency and leaking or dribbling.
- more frequent urination, especially at night.
- sexual dysfunction.
- impotence.
- if you are 30 years older.

The diagnosis tests vary from patient to patient, but the following are the most common:

PSA Blood Test

PSA, is a protein produced by prostate cells, is frequently present at elevated levels in the blood of men who have prostate disease.

Serum PSA –Prostate Specific Antigen– is a diagnostic parameter that has been used to monitor the stages of cancer development and the progress of the therapy.

Serum PSA measures the substance emitted both the normal prostate gland and by cancerous tissue in the prostate gland.

With normal prostate gland, PSA reads between 0 to 4.

Elevated PSA, higher than 5 indicates a sign of prostate carcinoma, benign prostate hyperplasia or prostatitis.

OTHER TESTS

- Digital Rectal Examination (DRE)
- Urine Flow Study
- Rectal Ultrasound
- Prostate Biopsy
- Cystoscopy
